

August the seventeenth
Nineteen forty

My dear Lady Bird:

I certainly enjoyed your letter which came this morning from the La Prudia Ranch. I know you must be having a wonderful time and your letter made me want to call George and suggest to him that we meet you at the ranch on your way back. I will possibly talk with him during the day but don't seriously think we could work out such an arrangement.

The talk going around here now is that Congress will adjourn the first or second week in September. I think whatever action is taken will be largely determined by what happens abroad.

I haven't heard anything more about the committee plans, hence I will probably be back in Austin right after adjournment and set up shop there.

I wish you would write me how you found things at home, what plans you have made about returning to Austin and all about your visit thus far. I get awfully anxious to get your letters and they come too few and far between.

This is Saturday afternoon and I haven't gone to lunch but realize if I am to hear, I must write so here I am.

Love

Lyndon

Thanks a million for your letter from Santa Fe. It came after I dictated this. Will write tomorrow.
