This was in the hall at the Elms, so would assume it is recent.

(It brought tears in my eyes--it's so sweet)

Love to you:

My darling +

How can I tell you that I love you on Valentine's Day?

— a variety of small things that certainly add up to the love to the Portuguese — make an appointment to get a shorter and less beautiful hair-do; find a box for your watcher (2, in fact); order the dining room chair in the Traveller; promise to lose at least an inch in the waist with my exercises; jog up the upholsterer who is doing over the big lounge chair in a less obtrusive color; try to run the house more happily than clearer instructions and kinder understanding of the "other fellow's problems"... Most of all, tell you, I think, that I've been very proud of ~~you~~ these last two years on ~~so~~ of your dignity and forbearance and fighting spirit in the face of a "host of arrows" and problems that are really new to you who have "ridden the Crest of good fortune so much,
