					The exhibit was attended by Commerce employees and their spouses in the Washington area.
					The main reason for the President attending was that when the President was Vice President, he had attended the same exhibit and bought one of the paintings there from a Mrs. Evelyn Meyer of the Bureau of Standards -- and paid $50.00 for it. This year, again, Mrs. Meyer was exhibiting but the President didn't buy anything.
					He briefly stopped and talked w/ Mrs. Lee Weiss -- who was one of the entrants and to another lady -- (Agent Youngblood did not have the name)
					The President said goodbye and thank you to Mrs. Connor -- and by this time, Secy. Connor had arrived, so the President greeted him and thanked him also.
	12:25				returned to the White House and went to the office.
