	11:05a				Arrived Sydney Airport , Kingsford Smith Airport
	11:10a				The President and Mrs. Johnson went down the front steps of the airplane and were met by-- His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales and Lady Cutler The Premier of New South Wales and Mrs. Askin The American Consul-General and Mrs. Capella
	It was a bright, sunny day cool and windy.				The President in company with the Premier walked to the microphone--the Premier welcomed the President. Overhead a large banner was suspended from two cranes reading--"Welcome to Sydney---First City of Australia". There was a fairly large crowd that had many small American and Australian flags, madly waving--warm, but orderly.
	11:14a	11:16a			REMARKS by the President. There were three applauses and a godd applause with cheers at the conclusion. the President walked down the fence by the crowd to his car.
	11:22a				Departed Sydney Airport for the Art Museum by car with: The Prime Minister and Marvin Watson The Premier The American Ambassador
	Advance man: Gene Foley
					There were good drowds along the way. Immediately outside the airport gates there was a group of demonstrators, but more friendly than unfriendly people. Many small flags flags were evident, streamers of various gay colors being thrown, ticker-tape flying. People were 3-10 deep.
					As the motorcade turned a corner a large banner was suspended over the street with a sign pinned to the Union Jack saying : "All the W y with LBJ"

	11:31a	11:35a			Stopped and out of car. The President was turning and waving to the crowds which were swarming around his car. Balloons, American flags, and small Australian flags were very much in evidence. The President was waving only--did not speak to the crowds.
					"People were clustered around the car not saying a word--just looking."--Gov. Bryant:mary s
					People along the way had streamers. The President's car was moving slowly through the crowd.
	11:38a	11:41a			Stopped. Crowds cheering. President vigorously shaking hands. Signs: "LBJ-He's ok" Children were throwing colored paper streamers. Many, many children around.
					Crowds got very deep as turned the corner.
	11:42a	11:45a			Stopped. President standing on side of car, then sat on roof. Sign: "Sydney Stays for LBJ". The crowd was pressing around him, shaking hands, reaching on all sides of the car.
					Although crowds were deep on either side of the street, it was reported at this point that it was miles more until the real crowds began.
	11:50a				Now running 35 minutes late.
					Passed about ten people holding a large sign: "Make America Our 7th State" to which about 7 red, yellow, and green balloons were attached. Children with falgs and banners were cheering as the motorcade progressed.
	11:55a	11:57a			Stopped by sign:"Americans Defend Australians in Vietnam--Long Live LBJ". The crowds cheered as the President stood on his car and waved.
	11:58a	12:02p			Stopped again. Standing on car, waving to crowds as muchnticker and confetti was thrown

					In the confusion at the airport, Ambassador Waller had been left behind. At this stop he caught up and joined Ambassador Symington in the motorcade.
					From this point on live radio and tv coverage of the motorcade with loudspeakers strung along the route every 20' so the spectators could hear the coverage.
					The motorcade passed under two 100ft. tall fire ladders which were holding a banner reading " N. S. W. Fire Brigades Welcomes L. B. J. "
					Along the way were bagpipes, flags, confetti, ticker, pennants--people about 14 deep
	12:07p	12:10p			Stopped. Here mounted officers joined the caravan. Out of car and transferred to a Black Pontiac due to the airconditioning in the President's car going out from ticker and confetti clogging air duct.
					In the new car were the President and the Premier of the Province of New South Wales
					Passed many demonstrators. Loud boos. Balloons shaped like balck bombs. Woman threw hershelp in front of the car . Threw large rools of toilet apaper against the car.
					Much confetti and tickers--street invisible under all the tickers and confetti. Cheers from the crowd. Signs over the street: "Eyes of Sydney Are Upon You"
					Note: the motorcade diverted from the originally planned route due to the violence of demonstrators who had slour bombs, etc. ready to throw. Security learned of this and changed the route.
	12:12p				Arrived at the Art Gallery of New South Wales. Outside there was a large, seemingly friendly crowd. American and Australian flags flew alternately from flag poles in front of the museum, and on the top of the building a large single American flag was flying.
