					The doctors and nurses awakened the President and gave him the usual early morning tests and his breakfast.
✓	8:35a				Mary S in -- Jack Valenti and Courtenay were already in; Courtenay in a very happy mood, obviously pleasing the President very much.
					The President approved a message to Seymour Poe, a man in the film industry, which Jack Valenti had requested.
					The President also commented that Mrs. Marcos should be written a nice letter.
	9:40a				Marie Fehmer in
					The President was sitting a chair doing work as Mary S handed it to him.
✓	9:55a		f		Mrs. Homer Thornberry--Mrs. Thornberry again thanked the President for asking her to go home on AF One, but said her committee was not finished yet.
					The President dictated a letter to Governor and Mrs. Wallace
	10:07a				Robert Kintner in.
					The President said that one of the most unusual things in American life is that parents could turn out a group like the Rockefellers. All of them are good. The President said he knew no man in in the world for whom he had more respect than Laurence Rockefeller, whose parents had one son who is governor of New York, one who is governor of Arkansas, one a banker, and one a leader in conservation.
					The President also told Kintner that K Orville Freeman was very good, and that he would hate to lose but wouldn't keep him from going on to bigger and better things.

					The President said that he wanted all his men to have better jobs.
					The President dressed, preparing to leave the hospital. He said he wanted to take all his G. Harvey paintings to the Ranch with him. He was kidding Mary S about not going, although he said he expected her to be on the first plane down.
	12:20p		- t		Secretary Robert McNamara
	12:15p				Walt Rostow in --The President told him to work hard on the boom in Asia, and sell it. A good idea would be to have an interview by LOOK and perhaps a lunch with Luce.
	12:25p				While the President and Rostow were talking, the following people were also in the President's room: Mary S, George Christian, Ken Gaddis, Stu Baltimore
	12:28p				Lynda in
	12:30p				The President was watching the television covering his departure from the hospital
	12:34p				George Christian and Walt Rostow out --The President watched their departure from the hospital on tv
	12:35p				The President departed his suite, down in the elevator with Mrs. Johnson, Lynda, Luci and Pat, the dog Kim, mf, and Marys. He paused to speak to the press outside and have some pictures made before walking on to the chopper waiting. Outside the chopper the President told Mary S and Lynda goodbye, then posed for pictures with Mrs. Johnson, Luci and Pat before boarding the waiting chopper.
	12:47p				On chopper
