Gardner Ackley asked the President to sign the Annual Report of the Council of Economic Advisers in the presence of the entire hard-working staff of the CEA. The President agreed and said it was an excellent idea.					The President sat at his Cabinet Table seat, and before him were several copies of the paperbound "Economic Report". The President urged all the members of the staff of CEA to crowd around him so that they could be seen in the pictures, and then asked photographers and reporters to come in. The President signed the first copy and gave the pen to Gardner Ackley. The second he gave to Arthur Okun. At this point Tom Johnson called "30 seconds," and the President said, "Tom, you'll have to take longer than that--it'll take longer than that for me to sign all these copies."
					After the signing, the President stood up, and looked at the members of the CEA, and said, "I want to thank thank all of you very much."
