	8:32am				Jetstar landed at Randolph AF Base. The President and Mrs. Johnson walked to the back steps of the waiting AF One 26000--there was a good camouflage set-up to avoid being seen by the crowd, for there were three luggage vans pulled up at the side of the aircraft which blocked the view. The other passengers boarded AF One from the steps at the front of the plane.
					The President went to the Conference Room w/ Mrs. Johnson

	11:59am				The President returned to the back of the airplane, stopping in the Conference Room to greet Lynda, saying, "Well, there is 'my first big noise-maker'", and then continued into his bedroom to shave and freshen up. (Sgt. Gaddis reported that although he had thought the President would want to change into a fresh, gray suit, the President said he would rather keep on his blue suit which he had worn on Friday.)
	12:01	12:13p			George Christian joined in the bedroom
	12:15pm				The President to the Conference Room to join Mrs. Johnson Lynda Bird Johnson Warrie Lynn Smith Ashton Gonella Mr. & Mrs. Krim
	12:19pm				AF One 26000 landed at Greater Philadelphia International Airport-- The President said goodbye to Mr. & Mrs. Arthur Krim on board the airplane and also to Ashton Gonella. Mr. & Mrs. Krim were going to catch a commercial flight to New York and Mrs. Gonella and Warrie Lynn Smith were going to fly on to Washington by convair, as AF One 26000 would wait for the President and his family at Philadelphia.
	12:25pm				The President got off the plane and walked to the waiting helicopter, Marine One with Mrs. Johnson and Lynda
	12:30pm				The President departed Philadelphia for Glassboro on board Marine One w/ Mrs. Johnson Lynda Bird George Christian Jim Jones Mr. Y. Okamoto

	12:41pm				Landed at the helicopter pad at Glassboro, New Jersey--The President and his family stood up to get off, then the President sat down again and told Jim Jones, mf, and mary s to get off first, then the President, Mrs. Johnson and Lynda got off the chopper. There was live television coverage of the entire day--an estimated 500,000 million people were able to see the happenings throughtout North America, South America, Europe, and parts of Asia. Here at Glassboro there seemed to be a camera behind each tree. (One official count had 850 accredited press people in Glassboro today to cover the Summit between the President and Kosygin.)
					The President and Mrs. Johnson were met at the steps of the helicopter by Hon. & Mrs. Richard Hughes, Governor of New Jersey and Dr. and Mrs. James Robinson, President of Glassboro College, and inhabitants of Hollybush, the home used as the Conference Site.
					Here it was a bright sunny day, and the day had encouraged the large crowds of on-lookers to gather.

					The motorcade passed along a tree-lined drive with white fences on either side. Behind the fences on the left side of the road as the motorcade proceeded, the press and press cameras were eagerly pressed against the fence. On the right side, were many State Troopers keeping people out of that, a restricted area as it was the back yard of Hollybush.
	12:47pm				Motordade arrived the Conference Site, Hollybush.
					As the President left his car, he was greeted by Hon. Robert S. McNamara, Secy of Defense Hon. Dean Rusk, Secy of State Hon. Averell Harriman, Ambassador at Large Hon. Llewellyn Thompson, Ambassador to the Union of Soviet Socialists Republics Hon. McGeorge Bundy, Special Consultant to the President Hon. Walt W. Rostow, Special Asst to the President Hon. W. Marvin Watson, Special Assistant to the President.
					The President was first greeted by Secys Rusk and McNamara, then the other members of the delegation came along and greeted the President.
	12:50pm				The President and the American delegation went into the conference room--located to the left of the front door as one enter's the house. Mrs. Johnson and Lynda entered the room also to briefly greet the gentlemen, then they left to go upstairs to await the arrival of the Soviet party.
		12:53pm			Mrs. Johnson and Lynda out of conference room, leaving the President with the American Delegation.
	1:29pm				The President emerged from the Conference Room, followed by the delegation, and stood in the hall awaiting the arrival of the Soviet party. The President gave Mrs. Johnson last minute instructions on what he wished her to do, telling her to be sure and offer Mrs. Lyudmila Gvishiana a chance to go to the ladies room and freshen up before leaving,

					She is married to the Deputy Chairman, USSR Committee for Science and Technology (comparable to an Under Secretary to an Assistant Secretary in a U. S. Dept.) and has two children: 19 year old son: Aleskey, and 7 year old daughter: Tat'yana. She worked for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1962. She speaks good English--needs no interpreter. After this day, Lynda observed that Mr. Gvishiana is a very nice person to be around, rather quiet, but very pleasant.
	1:48pm				The Ex ladies departed for the Hughes the Hughes lake house for lunch.
	1:50pm				The President led Chairman Kosygin into the dining room, where the places were not quite prepared, as the Soviets had just added Mr. Zemskov to the luncheon list and the extra place had been put at the wrong end of the table. The place cards were in the process of being juggled, to compensate, when the President and the Chairman entered the room, so the cards were merely replaced as they originally had been, with the additional place card put where the stewards had prepared the place. The President introduced Mr. and Mrs. to the Chairman and several other members of the delegation, and all took their seats as follows:
					Mr. Firsov
					Mr. Watson	Mr. Zemskov
					Mr. Vorontsov	The Secy of Defense, Mr. McNamara
					Mr. Rostow	Mr. Sukhodrev, interpreter
					H. E. L. M. Zamiatin	H. E. PREMIER KOSYGIN
					The Secy of State, Mr. Rusk	THE PRESIDENT
					H. E. the Minister of Foreign Affairs	Mr. Alexander Akalovsky--interpreter
					Amb. Thompson	The Amb of the USSR, Mr. Dobrynin
					Mr. Batsanov	Amb Harriman
					Mr. Bundy	General Volkov
					Mr. Christian
					Mr. Alexander Akalovsky, is the First Secy of the Embassy of the USA in Moscow. He was flown in from Moscow to act as the President's interpreter and seated at the President's left at the luncheon because the Soviet Interpreter was seated at Kosygin's right. Mr. Akalovsky did not act as interpreter on Friday. Feeling was the President required an expert, so Mr. Akalovsky was flown in on Saturday.

					The luncheon today had printed place cards and menu cards--except for a few last minute additions to the guests at the luncheon who again had hand-written cards.,
					the MENU: Crabmeat Salad Ring
					Beaulieu Broiled Lamb Chops
					Cabernet Parsley Potatoes
					Sauvignon Stuffed Eggplant
					Fresh Fruit Kirsch
					Petits-fours
	3:05pm				Lunch ended--the two delegations split up to meet among themselves, the American Delegation in the room to the right of the front door and the Soviet delegation to its conference room.
	3:20pm				The President, Chairman Kosygin, and the interpreters in to the Conference Room for private sessions---Secys Rusk and McNamara occassionally joined as did Bundy, Rostow, Christian, Thompson, Watson, Harriman--just running in and back out again, but for the most part, the session was entirely between the two leaders.
	4:35pm				Marvin Watson took the President a note that a decision must be made as to the method by which the Soviet party was to return to New York. An offer of a helicopter for transportation had been accepted, but a storm was developing and it appeared that the chopper could not be used if the party departed after 5:45pm. The Chairman had an announced news conference at 8:00pm, so had to be back by then. Should he have to drive, it would take 2hr. 15 min., hence they would still need to depart by 5:45pm. The President said to plan on taking the helicopter

	7:00pm				Arrive Greater Philadelphia International Airport--quickly up the steps to the waiting AF One 26000 and into the Conference Room.
	7:10pm				Take-off from Philadelphia for Washington, D. C. -- This flight was to be speeded up as much as possible for the President was in a race w/ time, for he wanted to make his statement on live television at the White House prior to Chairman Kosygin's televised Press Conference in New York.
	7:15pm				The President to the front compartment of the plane where he greeted Mr. Richard Moose Mrs. Bess Abell and spoke briefly with them.
					The President then went on to look over mf's shoulder as she was typing the cards for his speech he was to make. He stood there and talked with McGeorge Bundy, reading over Marie's shoulder. As she finished a card, the President and Mr. Bundy picked it up and read it, making one or two changes, but using the same card without it being retyped for his statement.
	7:31p				AF One 26000 landed at Washington National Airport, the MAC terminal. The President and the occupants of his helicopter quickly lined up at the back door of the plane so that they could go directly to the waiting helicopter with a minimum of time. However as the door opened, it was discovered that the steps had been placed, by mistake, at the front of the plane, so as the President and party raced through the plane, it could be heard over the intercome, "Make way for the President". As Frank Cormier who was in the press pool on board the plane, it looked almost like one of the old silent movies in which a comedy of errors occurred.
