Creator: Patterson, Bradley H. (Bradley Hawkes), 1921-

Biographical sketch:

Bradley Hawkes Patterson was a government official who held a great number of positions including assistant secretary to the President's Cabinet, analyst at the Bureau of the Budget, executive secretary of the Peace Corps, National Security Affairs Adviser at the Department of the Treasury, Executive Director of the National Advisory Commission on Selective Service, and Executive Director of the National Advisory Council on Economic Opportunity. Patterson served as an aide in a number of positions during the Nixon and Ford administrations.

Scope and content note:

This collection consists of transcripts, reports, and correspondence collected by Bradley Patterson while he served as the Executive Director of the National Advisory Commission on Selective Service. The papers cover the commission's meetings, membership, and recommendations, as well as the organization, procedures, and policies of the Selective Service System. The papers include materials on military manpower needs, military training, selection criteria, deferments, fairness of selection, the prospect of using an all-volunteer force, and non-military service as an alternative to being drafted.
