

you'd, I hope, ² come to see me !!
But I don't really truly want you to come because it would mean being a half year in law school, and that would mean a lot to you. But listen here, young man, if you come to Texas for even one day you'd better let me know!... I would want to know you were a little nearer, anyway. And perhaps we could see each other.

I've just finished reading Well's speech. Daddy was much in favor of Well's idea that "when you once enunciate the doctrine that the government owes to every man a living you have placed in reverse all

Thursday Note

Dearest -

your letter of Tuesday the third time. (I always read them that much.) I feel a little better now. Not much.

Lyndon, would you come to Texas without letting me know?
What did you mean about coming to Corpus if there wasn't more business in the Washington office?
- for a few days or for the rest of the year?

Of course, as for me - I'd love for you to be in Corpus!
I would come to see you - and sound doctrines." And also the attitude that the governments province should be as limited as possible. And I - there was a lot I agreed with Welly about! I very much abhor a high protective tariff. And I remember the case of Brazil's price fixing on ^(parallel case) Coffee - and how futile it was - and how deeply in debt it drove the country.

(I studied that in Hist. 49). But I do not think Socialism is an essentially malignant system ... and I don't object to the increasing paternalism of our government. I am inclined to believe in the "expediency" which ^{has} resulted in the passage of so many recent ultra-liberal measures - and which Welly denies. Nor do I like calling on the Constitution so much, bless its soul! I think it can be bent to suit new needs.

I admire the facile way Welly's mind works. He certainly had comparisons, figures, references, allusions all to hand.

We could probably have some grand arguments about it!
Do you like to argue about economics and religion and social systems et cetera ad infinitum ??? I do!

My Dear Lynden, I do miss you so... I've ever so many ways. Have you stopped missing me - I mean ~~like~~ I grow more remote with the passing days? You are nearer and more important to me all the time, dear. Goodnight, my love. Please wire immediately if you come to ^{the} ~~the~~ _{bird}
