CARTOONS ON SPACE

1963-1968

Compiled by

Lee D. Seagesser

(HHN-92)

NASA Historical Division

October, 1968

FOREWORD

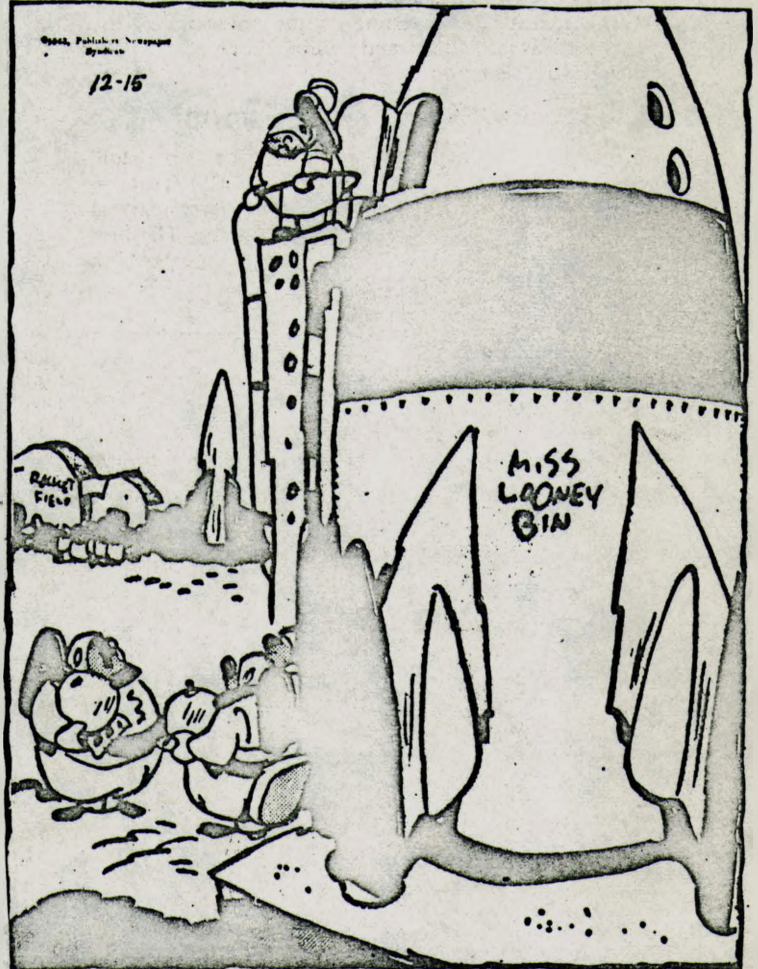

The NASA Historical Archives normally attempts to clip and file all published material relevant to aeronautical and space activities, past and present. This compilation of cartoons spanning the past five years reflects a more complete sampling of newspaper and magazine cartoons than is available for the early years of NASA. It is not, of course, either complete or annotated.

Since this compilation contains copyrighted material it is for internal NASA use only in this Historical Note. It offers one source on the general impressions concerning aerospace affairs portrayed symbolically and in a timely manner by cartoonists and their editors. Historians cannot ignore their source value on the place and impact of space affairs in the public mind.
